"Homes and Gardens" is a seasonable series of lectures, arranged by Marguerite Munger, supervisor of club activities of The Cleveland Museum of Art, for four consecutive Fridays at 2 p.m. All are free to the public. They begin May 2.

William M. Milliken, Director of The Cleveland Museum of Art, will be the first speaker, his subject, "Your Home and its Art." Mr. Milliken carries the additional office in the Museum, of Curator of Decorative Arts and is probably the leading authority on this subject in the country.

Robert A. Little, architect, will be the speaker on "Homes are for People" May 9. A Harvard graduate with many honors and successes to his credit, he is perhaps best known locally for the store he built at Shaker Square for The Halle Brothers Company. He has also done many brilliant and liveable residences in the contemporary style in Cleveland, its suburbs, and other towns.

Arnold M. Davis, director of The Garden Center, in the five years he has been in Cleveland has won universal esteem for his ability in his field, as well as the personal liking of everybody. He will be the third speaker, May 16, on "Gardens for Present Day Living."

Austin J. Shannon, newly appointed head of the Decorating Department of The Halle Brothers Company, will be the final speaker on "The Happy Mood in Home Decoration" May 23.
